SUNDEK, an industry leader in decorative concrete coatings since 1970, expands line to include decorative waterproofing solutions.

Waterproofing membranes are now available with Sundek's extensive line of decorative coatings suitable for all commercial and residential applications.

Arlington, Texas – The SunLastic line by Sundek, takes the proven and reliable technologies of synthetic rubber emulsions and partners it with Sundek's decorative concrete coating systems.

SunLastic WP50 is a single component elastomeric waterproofing membrane. It forms a monolithic, tightly adhering and molded water-proofing membrane across floors, up cove bases, curbs and other areas, which effectively blocks the pass thorough of water. For decorative finishes, WP50 can be top coated with Sundek's extensive line of decorative concrete coatings, including Sundek's new SunLastic EPC35.

The SunLastic EPC35 is comprised of a two-component cement-based overlay with exceptional flexibility and crack resistance. “The SunLastic EPC35 is a great option for projects where traditional overlays may be too hard or vulnerable to cracking, “ said Don Snider, VP Operations.

“The reduction of reflective cracking caused by dynamic substrate movement and the optional fiber reinforcement for high traffic areas further exemplifies the power of these additions to the Sundek product line,” said Marshall Seavers, VP of Product Development. Sundek manufactures and offers their Sundek systems exclusively to their dealers globally. The SunLastic products align with Sundek’s promise to be environmentally friendly due to their VOC compliance in all areas of the United States.
